- 6. On Mondays through Fridays from 30 January to 12 February 1954, tank exercises including record firing were held in the terrain east of the Spechtberg installation. Ten canvas-covered tanks were in each of four garages of the installation on 30 January 1954. They allegedly were JS tanks.
- 7. On 12 February 1954 it was planned to add five compartments to each garage in the altwarp, Broegeheide, Kerpin and Spechtberg installations. The foundation walls were partially, completed at the time of information.
- 8. From 1 to 13 February 1954, the Bereitscheftslager (camp) on the couthern perimeter of Eggesin quartered an estimated 400 KVrs. Most of the soldiers formerly quartered in the camp had allegedly moved to the barracks installations in the wooded area. Soldiers leaving or entering the camp wore red-bordered black, yellow-bordered black, and black-bordered blue, collar patches. The dependents of 15 to 20 Soviet officers were billeted in the camp for a couple of weeks.
- 9. A civilien employes working in the camp said that a meeting involving Soviet officers and all German officers stationed at the barracks installations in the wooded area was held in the camp every Thursday afternoon.

 | ebout 250 KVP officers from the Macklenburg area held a conference at the camp on 31 January and 1 February 1954.

10. During the time of information, the barracks installation in the Karpin woods the instalk tion was not occupied to capacity. Soldiers entering or leaving the instalkation were red-bordered black, black-bordered blue, and red collar patches. About 75 percent of the standard buildings were occupied at the time of information. KVP officers' dependents still moved into the buildings at irregular intervals. Construction activity in the installation had completely discontinued at the time of information, but shipments of lime and cement came in daily despite the frosty weather. Since an undetermined date, about 200 men who were granted weekend leave left the installation on Fridays and came back on Mondays.

11. At 8 a.m. on 9 February 1954, three groups each numbering 30 men ceme from the wooded area and passed through Eggesin toward the terrain south of the Schlossberg (Sill), from where they returned at about 12 a.m. At about 10 a.m., about 20 reports of gums were heard from the Hoelkebeum area, and reports of rifles were continuously heard from the wooded area southeast of Eggesin all day long. From 9 to 11 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m. on 11 February 1954, and from 10 to 11 a.m. on 12 February 1954, reports of mortars were heard from the Neumuchl area. On 13 February 1954, rifle and machine gum fire was heard from the wooded area southeast of Eggesin all day long. Starting at 2 p.m. on 4 and 5 February 1954, gums fired three salves of 15 to 20 rounds at intervals of shout 30 minutes in the Hoelkebaum area.
